Change.

For over a century, the National Council of Jewish Women has been at the forefront of social change—championing the needs of women, children, and families—while courageously taking a progressive stance on such issues as child welfare, women’s rights, and reproductive freedom.

And now, with progressive ideals facing their greatest challenge in a generation, it’s even more important that courageous, compassionate women find a place to come together and take a stand.

Act.

NCJW embraces women of diverse backgrounds and temperaments, thinkers and doers who want to play a part at the local, national, and even global levels.

What unifies our 90,000 members and supporters around the country is a belief in what NCJW stands for—the belief that progressive ideals put into meaningful action can improve the world. NCJW is the most potent, most effective, most satisfying place where you can take that action and become a positive force for change.

In communities across the country and around the globe, NCJW's programs reflect the spirit of the organization itself — a powerful union of forward-thinking ideals and Jewish values: A faith in the future. A belief in action.

NCJW's Community Action Projects address the needs of women, children, and families at the local level — identifying distinct challenges, developing responses, and delivering support and strength from coast to coast.

NCJW's Coalition Work in Washington DC, Israel, and across the US makes it an important partner and leader in collaborative work to effect public policy change on a wide range of domestic and international issues.

NCJW's Online Action Center provides instant access to issue information, advocacy campaigns, and email updates enabling site visitors to learn more and speak out.

NCJW's State Public Affairs Network — a corps of trained volunteers — shares public policy expertise at the state level, taking the lead on issues of concern to NCJW and representing the organization in state capitals.

BenchMark: NCJW's Campaign to Save Roe educates and mobilizes NCJW members and the Jewish community to ensure a federal bench with judges who will protect fundamental freedoms, including women's right to reproductive choice.

StoP: NCJW's Strategies to Prevent Domestic Violence facilitates education, outreach, advocacy, and community action with the Jewish community and the general public.

The NCJW Women and Gender Studies Program at Tel Aviv University, the first bachelor's degree-granting program of its kind in the Middle East, offers an interdisciplinary analysis of issues impacting women and other minorities.

The NCJW Women Studies Forum at Tel Aviv University advances research and analysis in feminist studies while reaching out to the public through educational seminars and community services.

Yad B'Yad: NCJW's Initiative to Nurture Knowledge supports grassroots organizations empowering women and serving at-risk children and their families in Israel.
